

RAW, CONFIDENT OF HIS FREEDOM, PLANS AUTO TRIP

Will Motor to Pittsburgh and Frisco if Lawyers Leave Enough Money.

READ EVELYN'S STORY.

Prayer, Bored in Court, Says Personal Recital Would Have Freed Him.

While Dr. Austin Flint was giving as his opinion before Justice Hendrick and "an advisory jury" this afternoon that Harry K. Thaw is insane, a messenger delivered an important-looking package to Thaw.

The slayer of Stanford White at once tore open the envelope and drew out a pile of road maps covering the automobile route from New York to San Francisco. Disregarding the witness Thaw busied himself with the map and insisted that all his counsel, except John B. Stanchfield, go over the map with him. Earlier in the day he had stated for publication that if his lawyers left him money enough he was going to buy a car to go to the Panama Pacific Exposition next week.

When he became aware of the interest of the spectators in his map study Thaw tucked away the maps and less ostentatiously began looking over a route book.

While Dr. Flint was stating his qualifications as an alienist, Judge Fitzgerald of London and Dr. Macy, head of the King's Park Hospital for the insane, both intimate friends of Justice Hendrick, sat beside the Justice. Dr. Macy was also in court this morning. It was carefully explained that his presence had no official bearing on the case and was due only to his desire to visit with Justice Hendrick.

Dr. Flint said that from the first time he saw Thaw until to-day he had been sure Thaw was insane—a victim of paranoia. Mr. Stanchfield began an aggressive cross-examination.

By holding long sessions until the evidence is in, Justice Hendrick hopes to close the taking of testimony Wednesday or possibly to-morrow. The verdict of the advisory jury will not end the proceeding, however. Whether it votes to set Thaw loose or not, the Justice will take the verdict under consideration and may not reach the actual determination of the case for some time.

Thaw was full of vitality and ideas when he walked briskly into court with his guard. He settled right down to the table beside John B. Stanchfield, of his counsel, drew up his knees, folded his arms and fairly rattled his suggestions to the lawyer. Thaw told acquaintances in the courtroom that he anticipated a dull day, referring to the technical testimony of Dr. Austin Flint and other alienists.

Thaw had nothing to say of the suspension over Sunday of his privileges of roaming through the restaurant district. But he said he had injured his finger "playing court tennis" with two members of the Allimony Club who usually play pinochle with me all night.

Thaw showed only a perfunctory interest in the reading by Deputy Attorney General Alfred L. Becker of the testimony, which included Evelyn Thaw's description of Stanford White's studio in West Twenty-fourth Street and her introduction there.

ALSO READ HER MURDER TRIAL TESTIMONY.

The reading of the revolting story told by Evelyn Thaw on the stand at the trial of Thaw for murder was part of the record which was read. It included all the details of the attack which Evelyn Thaw said White had made on her. But Thaw listened calmly, only glancing at the jury from time to time as though to observe the effect of the story on them. He became much more animated when there were lifts between counsel as to the sequence in which the record should be read.

The record showed that Evelyn Thaw had sworn before Justice Hendrick that in her association with Thaw he was sane and rational as to everything except Stanford White. The recounting of this answer seemed

For Constipation USE EX-LAX

The Delicious Laxative, Regulates the stomach and bowels, stimulates the liver and promotes digestion. Good for young and old, 10c, 25c, and 50c, at all druggists.

WHAT EVERY WOMAN SHOULD KNOW!

How to Keep Well, Keep Strong and Keep a Perfect Figure, Told in a Series of Illustrated Lessons

WAND EXERCISE, NO. 1

To-Day's Illustrated Lesson Explains the Need for Breathing Pure Air and Gives Wand Exercises Which Strengthen Weak Heart and Lungs.

Because of her perfect physical proportions, Pauline Furlong has been named the "American Venus." She is the author of "Beauty Culture at Home," and is an authority on all questions of woman's physical well being. She will give a six weeks' course of lessons to the women readers of The Evening World this summer on "How to Make Yourself Well and Strong and Preserve Your Figure."

LESSON XII.

By Pauline Furlong.

The right sort of breathing is diaphragmatic, inflating every part of the lungs, but not moving the lower walls of the abdomen. The inhalation and exhalations should be taken through the nose, not the mouth, and should be characterized by depth, smoothness and regularity. Deep breathing should be an instinct which governs every minute of life, waking or sleeping. With every deep breath the stout woman takes, the bellows of her lungs fans the invisible bodily fire that burns up surplus tissue.

There you have summed up the creed of deep breathing which I tried to explain to you so thoroughly last week, and which I am briefly recapitulating to-day in order that you may not fail to "begin right" in the third week of our course of lessons.

IMPORTANCE OF WHAT AND HOW YOU BREATHE.

But there is still another factor to be considered before we leave the topic of breathing. It matters enormously how you breathe; it matters just as enormously what you breathe.

Every day women—men, too, and children—are taking into their bodies stale, decayed air, air containing poison, not so sensational in its action, but as deadly as that to be found in tainted meat or milk. We have had pure food crusades, and they have

JUSTICE HENDRICK DECLARES HE WAS MISQUOTED.

Justice Hendrick to-day declared "several leading newspapers of New York are in contempt" for quoting a statement he declared he did not make. He called the Herald by name.

"That there may be no further misunderstanding," he said, "I will read one of the articles which is in contempt of this court." The Justice then read from the Herald a statement that his attitude toward Thaw was indicated by this comment on Thaw's narrative of the killing of Stanford White at Friday's hearing: "I think he has answered the question very completely and sensibly."

"That is untrue," said the Justice. "I have formed no opinion as to the sanity of this man and have said nothing indicating that I have formed such an opinion. I did not utter the words 'fully and sensibly.' They do not appear in the stenographic record."

An examination of the record shows that at the end of the murder story Deputy Attorney General Cook is recorded as saying:

"Go on!" "I think he has answered the question completely," said Mr. Stanchfield, "and he will not go on unless the Court so directs."

The next quotation in the record is of a question put to the witness on another matter. Justice Hendrick concluded by saying that every newspaper quoting the comment, as denied by him, was in contempt. He said he would give each newspaper an opportunity to set itself right, but that it was within his power to punish any newspaper failing to take such action, and he meant to watch carefully what attitude each newspaper took.

Mayor Saves Wife From Drowning. Mayor George N. Seger of Passaic, Commodore of the Lake Hopatcong Yacht Club, was in haste when he brought his yacht up to the club float yesterday evening. Mrs. Seger was anxious to get up to their summer home, Blitover, at the top of the bluff, to make sure that dinner was ready. Mrs. Seger walked so fast that she lost her balance and fell off an unfinished part of the float. Mayor Seger plunged after his wife, who had begun to drift away, and brought her safely ashore.

done admirable work; but why not start a pure air crusade?

Plenty of women still may be found ready to assure you that night air, especially, is a peril which must be avoided. It would be interesting to know how that superstition about night air arose in a climate such as is to be found in the greater part of North America. Very probably it is an echo of the opinion held for so long in tropical countries—that night air is the direct cause of malaria. If I am not mistaken science now says that even in these countries the bite of a certain kind of mosquito, and not night air, brings malaria. In any event, nobody in this latitude need fear malarial disorders through leaving the window open. Logically speaking, what sort of air can you get after sundown except night air? It seems to me that you have simply the choice between night air that is fresh and clean and cool and night air that has been breathed over and over again.

Of course most persons breathe better air in summer than in winter, even though they stay in the city all through the hot weather. He called the Herald by name. "That there may be no further misunderstanding," he said, "I will read one of the articles which is in contempt of this court." The Justice then read from the Herald a statement that his attitude toward Thaw was indicated by this comment on Thaw's narrative of the killing of Stanford White at Friday's hearing: "I think he has answered the question very completely and sensibly."

"That is untrue," said the Justice. "I have formed no opinion as to the sanity of this man and have said nothing indicating that I have formed such an opinion. I did not utter the words 'fully and sensibly.' They do not appear in the stenographic record."

An examination of the record shows that at the end of the murder story Deputy Attorney General Cook is recorded as saying:

"Go on!" "I think he has answered the question completely," said Mr. Stanchfield, "and he will not go on unless the Court so directs."

The next quotation in the record is of a question put to the witness on another matter. Justice Hendrick concluded by saying that every newspaper quoting the comment, as denied by him, was in contempt. He said he would give each newspaper an opportunity to set itself right, but that it was within his power to punish any newspaper failing to take such action, and he meant to watch carefully what attitude each newspaper took.

Mayor Saves Wife From Drowning. Mayor George N. Seger of Passaic, Commodore of the Lake Hopatcong Yacht Club, was in haste when he brought his yacht up to the club float yesterday evening. Mrs. Seger was anxious to get up to their summer home, Blitover, at the top of the bluff, to make sure that dinner was ready. Mrs. Seger walked so fast that she lost her balance and fell off an unfinished part of the float. Mayor Seger plunged after his wife, who had begun to drift away, and brought her safely ashore.

"That is untrue," said the Justice. "I have formed no opinion as to the sanity of this man and have said nothing indicating that I have formed such an opinion. I did not utter the words 'fully and sensibly.' They do not appear in the stenographic record."

An examination of the record shows that at the end of the murder story Deputy Attorney General Cook is recorded as saying:

Mayor Saves Wife From Drowning. Mayor George N. Seger of Passaic, Commodore of the Lake Hopatcong Yacht Club, was in haste when he brought his yacht up to the club float yesterday evening. Mrs. Seger was anxious to get up to their summer home, Blitover, at the top of the bluff, to make sure that dinner was ready. Mrs. Seger walked so fast that she lost her balance and fell off an unfinished part of the float. Mayor Seger plunged after his wife, who had begun to drift away, and brought her safely ashore.

do you ask? I have explained to you how essential oxygen is to the human system, and how the stout person needs an especially generous supply. Fresh air is loaded with oxygen, but the air that you breathe out of your lungs is loaded with carbonic acid gas. It has been estimated that air breathed, no more than twice holds enough of this gas to put out the flame of a lamp.

One reason why you must be so sure that your fresh air supply at night is unstinted is because, the commonest method of illumination, lamps and gas jets, feed themselves oxygen even more lavishly than do human beings. It takes sixteen persons to breathe as much oxygen as is used up by one solitary gas jet. Go to sleep some time in a room where a gas lamp and a gas stove are both burning busily, and where all the windows and doors are closed. If you want to realize the fierceness of the competition between you and the gas for the available oxygen. Your resultant headache will give the lesson more emphasis than any words of mine can lend it.

Without exaggeration, each human being needs at least 2,000 cubic feet of fresh, cool, unbreathed air every hour of the day or night. Summer is an excellent time to arrive at and practice the determination to supply yourself with this plain and simple necessity of life.

WAND EXERCISES STRENGTHEN WEAK HEART AND LUNGS.

I hope you are not tired of the wand exercises, but these are new ones and the last we shall do for some time. Also they will aid in preparing you for the rather difficult set of movements I shall explain during the next two days.

To perform Exercise No. 1 take the correct standing position, then bring your feet together and plant the end of your wand on the floor so that it is parallel to your body and in front of a little to one side of you. The top end of the wand should be grasped lightly in your right hand, the right elbow being bent as when carrying an umbrella. Supporting yourself with the wand, raise and lower each foot alternately, bending the leg at the knee so that your shin is parallel to the floor.

This is called the stationary run, and exercises the muscles of the legs while developing what are likely to be two weak spots in the stout person—lungs and heart. Perform this exercise for thirty seconds and you will have run one-tenth of a mile.

In Exercise No. 2 your initial position is the same as in the preceding exercise. Then, bringing the wand to horizontal position, open and grasping it with both hands about two feet apart, raise it overhead, bend the body at the waist, keeping the hips firm, and twist the wand to the left as possible. Repeat this exercise ten times in the beginning, and

When there is only one window in a room, pull the sash down at the top and up at the bottom, thus affecting a circulation of the air current. This is more hygienic than the usual procedure of thrusting the window up from the bottom as far as it will go. In any room, even your bedroom, which has windows located opposite at right angles to each other, or a window and a door occupying such relative positions, all the apertures should be left open. There is no reason why you should fear a draught if you are in good health, and in summer such a self-made breeze is cooling and delightful.

Why is fresh air so important,

When there is only one window in a room, pull the sash down at the top and up at the bottom, thus affecting a circulation of the air current. This is more hygienic than the usual procedure of thrusting the window up from the bottom as far as it will go. In any room, even your bedroom, which has windows located opposite at right angles to each other, or a window and a door occupying such relative positions, all the apertures should be left open. There is no reason why you should fear a draught if you are in good health, and in summer such a self-made breeze is cooling and delightful.

Why is fresh air so important,

PAULINE FURLONG

Readers of Miss Furlong's articles who are keeping measurement charts or otherwise following her lessons are invited to write to her, in care of The Evening World, asking any questions pertinent to the lessons or requesting information that will aid them in following her rules for diet and exercises.

often as your strength and skill increase. It reduces and renders shapely the arms, waist, abdomen and legs.

The last exercise I give you to-day is simply another variant of the trunk twisting, which, as I have told you, is so valuable for reducing the waist. In the normal standing position, with the wand held breast-high in front of you and parallel to the floor, turn the upper part of the body alternately to the left and right, letting the wand and your arms follow the direction of your torso. Repeat ten times, and oftener after the first few days.

Letters from Evening World Readers Following Miss Furlong's Lessons.

STEADY READER asks: Is a woman of fifty years too old to start the exercises for reducing? Certainly not, but don't overdo them. Try only four or five of the simplest ones about twice each day at the start.

MRS. L. McD. writes: How can I gain weight? A course in diet and exercises for developing will be given in these columns later.

PERPLEXED asks: I am just your height and measurements, yet weigh twelve pounds more. Is this healthy? The difference in your weight and my own is due to the size of your bones and not to too much flesh. Scientists allow ten pounds either way for this reason.

A. C. asks: How can I obtain the back numbers containing your articles? They will be sent you on receipt of stamps to cover cost of same.

W. F. asks: Would your exercises be beneficial to a man who wants to reduce? Certainly.

A READER asks: What special exercises will reduce the thighs? The rolling exercises printed on July 5.

Man's Body in North River. The body of a man was taken from the North River to-day at Forty-ninth Street. It was about fifty years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighed 150 pounds; fair complexion, gray mustache, black suit, tan shirt and gray shoes.

The "TARZAN" Man! You remember "TARZAN OF THE APES" of course. Well, Edgar Rice Burroughs, who wrote the "TARZAN" stories, has written a new romance along the same line.

It is called "SWEETHEART PRIMEVAL" begins serial publication in TO-DAY'S Evening World.

Don't miss one instalment of it: It is Edgar Rice Burroughs' new, best—and in many ways his best—novel.

No one who enjoyed "TARZAN" will be willing to miss "SWEETHEART PRIMEVAL," by the same author.

Read it. Remember "SWEETHEART PRIMEVAL" begins in to-day's Evening World.

"L" WORKMAN DROPS HAMMER INTO AUTO; GIRL FATALLY HURT

Is Struck Down by Missile as She Sits in Tonneau of Car.

Cecilia, the nineteen-year-old daughter of Charles B. Steuerwald, a building contractor living at No. 14 Kosuth Place, Williamsburg, was probably fatally injured to-day by a 10-pound hammer which dropped from the elevated structure at Broadway and Belvidere Street into her father's automobile and struck her on the head. She suffered a compound fracture of the skull.

Workmen employed by the Terry & Tench Company are engaged in reconstructing and third tracking the Broadway "L" line in Williamsburg. A big gang of ironworkers was busy on the structure when Mr. Steuerwald stopped his car in front of No. 885 Broadway at 10 o'clock to-day and entered the building. Miss Steuerwald remained in the car.

The hammer, dropping about twenty feet, passed through the top of the car and struck Miss Steuerwald on the head. Many pedestrians saw the accident, and Mr. Steuerwald was called from his business errand. He took his daughter home and surgeons were summoned.

Police from the Hamburg Avenue station sought to fix the blame, but could find no workman who would admit dropping the hammer.

JUDGE IS STILL ILL; SLADE TRIAL GOES OVER

Mistrial of Brothers May Be Declared Wednesday in Federal Court.

Perhaps the present trial of the Slades is over and perhaps it isn't, but be that as it may the many form of "Oliver Osborne" was not seen this morning in the United States Court.

The trial of the two Slade brothers and their detective, Albert J. McCullough, for conspiracy to obstruct justice in the case of Rae Tanzer against James W. Osborne was called. Judge Hunt presided in the absence of Judge Gordon Russell. Dr. Fielding Taylor testified that Judge Russell may be well enough in a few days to proceed.

United States District Attorney Marshall moved a mistrial. Martin Littleton, for the Slades, moved that the trial go on before Judge Hunt. Mr. Marshall demurred that that might vitiate a conviction, if any were had, so the case went over until Wednesday morning, when Judge Russell is expected to decide whether he can proceed.

TWO SLAYERS ESCAPE AFTER BRONX MURDER

Woman Awakened by Shots in Street Calls Police, Who Find Victim Dying.

A man who the police say was Frank Caro, twenty-four years old, address unknown, was fatally shot in Port Independence Street, the Bronx, shortly before 1 o'clock this morning by two men who escaped. The police have no clue to the murderers.

Mrs. L. J. Mulvaney of No. 3497 Fort Independence Street was awakened by three shots, and, looking out, saw two men running up the street in the gutter in front of her house lay Caro.

She called the Kingsbridge Police Station on the telephone and patrolmen found Caro with a revolver wound in the head and one in the abdomen and one in the left shoulder. Dr. Elise rushed the man to Fordham Hospital, where he died ten minutes after his arrival.

WHITMAN SEES PRISON BABY.

Governor Plays With Two-Year-Old on Visit to Auburn.

AUBURN, July 12.—Gov. Whitman visited Auburn Prison to-day. He went through the entire plant, including the condemned row and the women's prison. While passing through the latter the Governor was touched by the sight of a two-year-old baby, mothered by one of the inmates. He played with the youngster a few minutes and then addressed the women in the room.

"Conceding his call," Gov. Whitman said to reporters: "My visit was purely to obtain information and to see the prison as it is seen in the short period available. There is nothing inequalitarian in these visits. The State appropriates large sums of money for these places and we want to know how it is spent. I enjoyed my visit."

SENTENCE CUT FOR DARING.

"Any man with nerve enough to jump off an elevated train while it is in motion, in order to escape from the police, has nerve enough to make good at something worth while," said Magistrate Barlow in Yorkville Court this morning. He was talking to Fred Collins, twenty-eight, of No. 223 East Twelfth Street, who had been arrested for jostling on the elevated last June 23 and later endeavored to escape by leaping from a moving elevated train.

"Inasmuch as you are an escaped prisoner," the Magistrate said, "I cannot let you go at once, but I will cut the usual sentence in half and give you forty-five days."

RICHMOND BOROUGH PRESIDENT WHO DIED IN RELIGIOUS RETREAT.

CHARLES J. MCCORMACK

BOROUGH PRESIDENT M'CORMACK IS DEAD

Passes Away Suddenly in Staten Island Retreat—Funeral Takes Place Wednesday.

After an illness of several months, Charles J. McCormack, Borough President of Richmond, died suddenly early yesterday at Mount Marcella, a Jesuit retreat for Catholic laymen at Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island. His death came as a great shock.

Mr. McCormack was born in Manhattan fifty years ago. His first political position took him to Staten Island twenty-two years ago, when he was an official sealer in the Department of Taxes. He was elected to the Assembly and then became Sheriff. Before being elevated to the Borough Presidency in 1913 he filled several commissions.

He is survived by a widow and two children. The funeral will be held on Wednesday. At a meeting of citizens and officials held at the Borough Hall at St. George to-day a committee was appointed to take charge of the arrangements.

The body will lie in state in the Borough Hall from 9 until 10.30 Wednesday morning. It will then be taken to St. Peter's Church at New Brighton, where a funeral mass will be said. Then the body will be taken to St. Peter's Cemetery for interment.

LADY MANNERS HURT.

Noted London Beauty Breaks Leg and Undergoes Operation.

LONDON, July 12.—The Daily Mail reports, "Lady Diana Manners, who has sustained a badly fractured leg, underwent a successful operation at the Nursing Home Saturday and is getting on favorably."

Lady Diana Manners is the youngest of the Duke of Rutland's three daughters, all famous for beauty.

FIREBUG IMPERILS LIVES.

Two Families Rescued at Instantaneous Blaze in Yonkers.

Somebody put a fire starter under the stairway at No. 436 Walnut Street, Yonkers, last night and set it to go off at 3 o'clock this morning. As the stair began to smoke and blaze Police Officer Frank Sakowitz broke in.

Mrs. Barbara Leeks and her daughter Julia and Annie were taken down ladders from the second story by the firemen. The house was destroyed. Fire Chief Mulcahey has the remains of the incendiary machine and is investigating.

Purity Premier says—

"Maybe you don't like ready made salad dressing. Neither did I, till I found

Premier SALAD DRESSING

"Mayonnaise De Luxe"

Quite different from any except home made—just like that. Not expensive either. Geocers sell it.

If you don't, write us. Ask for Salad Recipe Book.

Francis H. Leggett & Co., Hudson River, 27th to 28th St., New York.

EVELYN NESBIT THAW wearing one of our new advanced models

FALL VELVET HATS See our exhibition of Paris' latest millinery. Wear it—our show room.

London Feather Co. 319 WEST 34th STREET

Hot afternoons the RHEINAROONS Find nothing half so nice As golden clear, cool Rheingold Beer, Just taken from the ice.

Hot afternoons the RHEINAROONS Find nothing half so nice As golden clear, cool Rheingold Beer, Just taken from the ice.

Rheingold Beer

The mildness and purity of Rheingold Beer make it an ideal hot-weather drink.

S. Liebmann's Sons Brewing Co.